

Earth Day 2007 in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers San Francisco District

San Francisco District employees participated in Lake Sonoma Earth Day activities at the lake in Geyserville, California on April 21 and 22. A dedication of the reworking of the Woodland Ridge Nature Trail highlighted the activities. In addition, park rangers read with children and presented two different programs of interest, one on watersheds to teach children the importance of clean water and one called Up the Creek to show the diversity of life found in a stream and how humans both impact it and can save it.
